

The Boston Globe

NOVEMBER 20, 2019

Trends: Why wood is burning hot in bathroom design now

Marni Elyse Katz - Globe Correspondent

[...]

Designer Annie Hall embraced the coastal Cali vibe for clients in Jamaica Plain by lining the walls of their master bath with custom white oak shiplap finished with a flat varnish to protect against humidity. “I do a lot of natural wood vanities, but this is the first bath I’ve designed with wood walls,” Hall said. The siding channels a sauna interior, a look Hall said is coming back.

[...]

Full Text: <https://realestate.boston.com/home-improvement/2019/11/20/trends-designers-incorporate-wood-bathrooms/>

White oak floorboards run throughout this Jamaica Plain pied-à-terre, including the bathroom. “If the wood floor is properly sealed, and bath mats are used, it should be fine,” designer Annie Hall said. “It might not be the best choice for a children’s bathroom though.” —Michael J. Lee Photography